Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Human Reproduction

The rapidly changing medical technologies on human reproduction bring forth a variety of complex ethical and legal questions which the University Research Priority Program “Human Reproduction Reloaded | H2R” is dedicated to exploring. The 2022 H2R Summer School will delve further into notions of kinship, parenthood, and family within the context of reproductive medicine. Approaching this topic from their respective fields of Social Anthropology, Ethics, Sociology, Medical Psychology, Law and Gender Studies, the plenary speakers will investigate how our contemporary medical technologies of human reproduction, such as assisted reproductive technologies (ART), affect discourses and practices on kinship.
